

Animals Are My Well-being

Animals are one method to help relieve my feelings. Watching them can make me feel at peace and happier. I do what I can to help them, taking part in some charity activities for helping homeless pets and save wild animals, sharing environmental information, and so on.

Helping them can heal me. When I am in the darkest time, I find strength with painting animals, like my work named Blue Horse, which I mentioned: Blue Horse carries my dream to rush out of the impasse and reach my dreamland.

The tiger I paint in the work means courage and stillness. What will be left if there are no animals but only human?

We will lose inspiration and imagination, and we will lose most well-being in life. Because we, like other animals, are a part of the planet. There is a deep link between humans and all kinds of life.
